

Dues, Fees and Fundraisers

The annual dues are $100 for Scouts and $45 for first adult and $30 for the second family adult. This covers membership in Boy Scouts of America and also Troop 101 membership until the annual re-charter next November.

Each Scout is required to pay dues each year. The dues are set by the Troop Committee and are paid annually either upon joining the Troop or at the time of re-charter (December of each year). Your son is required to pay his dues regardless of whether or not he attends all of the Troop meetings and activities.

Troop 101 actively participates in numerous events. Many of these activities, notably the camping events, require a participation fee, in addition to a fee paid to his patrol Quartermaster for food. You or your son must pay this fee. Your son will be notified of the event fee several weeks in advance of the event. The fee must be paid before the event, usually during the planning meeting or when special registrations are required. No refunds are given due to cancellations made by a Scout family after the planning meeting or registration date.

During most campouts your son will cook and eat with his patrol. The patrol Quartermaster will purchase the food for the entire patrol for each campout. Prior to each campout, your son's patrol will decide exactly how much each member's quartermaster fee is. All money owed for food is paid to the patrol Quartermaster, by your son, at the Troop meeting prior to the event. The Troop is not responsible for Patrol quartermaster decisions/fees.

Periodically throughout the year the Troop may conduct fundraisers. Proceeds from the fundraisers will be used to purchase camping equipment and other materials and supplies needed by the Troop. While participation in fundraisers is not mandatory, parents and Scouts are strongly encouraged to actively participate.

Other fundraisers may be allocated to use toward each Scout's individual participation level to be applied toward their Long-Term Camping Fund.
